Advice for Players

First you have to cut out the cards and don't mash them up!

This is a board game which has a spiral board and five different mini games.

There is also a square of dices where you can throw the dice.

This game can be played by at least six groups and each group has to have at least two persons. You start at the starter square and the objective is arriving at the final square called golden square. In order to arrive you have to throw the dices and go through the board answering correctly the different questions which are there.

If you answer the question correctly you can throw the dices again. However if the answer is incorrect you stay on the same square and you can't throw the dice again.

This Mini game is called questions.

When you arrive at a question-square, and a big question mark is on it, another group will ask you a question. Your task is to say the right answer. There can be questions of true or false or questions where you have to find words or full sentences. The other teams have to take the time, because you have only one minute to answer.

This mini game is called Pictionary.

Your task is to draw a word which is on a card you have drawn when you arrived at the pencil-square. You are not allowed to write numbers, letters or words. One member of the group is the one who has to draw. The other people of the group have to guess what he/she draws. They're not allowed to see the card before. The same time limit as in the other mini game is applied.

This mini game is called "Mimics".

When you arrive at the square where hands are drawn one member of your group has to draw a card and has to mime the word which is written on it. You are not allowed to speak. The only activities allowed are gestures. The time limit is also applied here.

This mini game is called "three words".

When you arrive at a square which shows a three you have to take a card and your task is to say three words and the group members have to guess which word you're describing. Again you have only one minute.

This mini game is called "Taboo".

This is a game in which you have to explain a word without saying some words which are forbidden. They are written on the card you have to draw. Again your group members have to say which word you are describing.

This square looks like taboo.
