

PROPAGANDA GAME

Instructions:

2 players or teams. Each player/team will be shown a propaganda poster from the Cold War. The aim is to work out the meaning or message of the poster-the group that is closest gains one point. The teacher judges who is closest. Also, a bonus point can be given for guessing the country and decade in which the poster was made. The winner is the team or player with the most points.

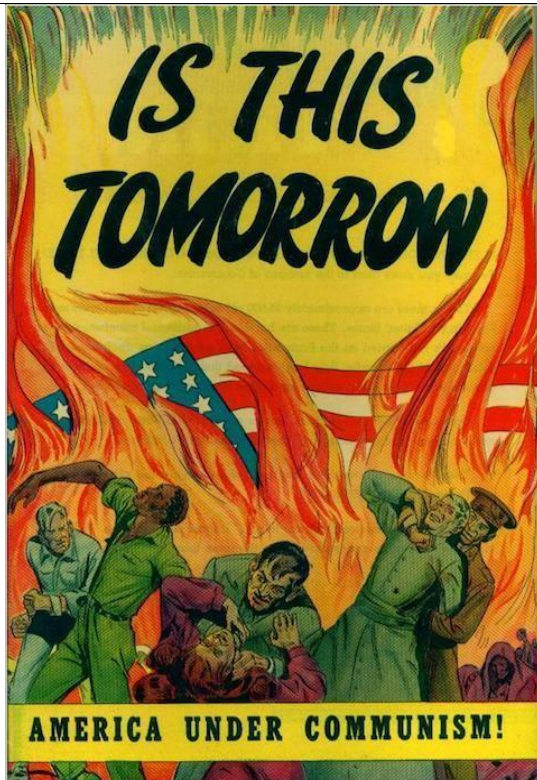

If you want more play-cards go to this page and learn more :

<https://skytamer.com/R701-12.html>

'If you do a pointless chat, you are helping spying rat' Don't talk unnecessarily. Soviet Union, 1954	Socialism throttling prosperity, represented by Britannia (a symbol of Britain) Socialism makes everyone poorer Britain 1909 (Pre-Cold War)

Violence and the destruction of America will be the result of Communism in America.

USA, 1947

Text reads: "Bolshevism Unmasked"

Refers to destructive and torturous capability of Russian conquerors. Also links Judaism to Communism.

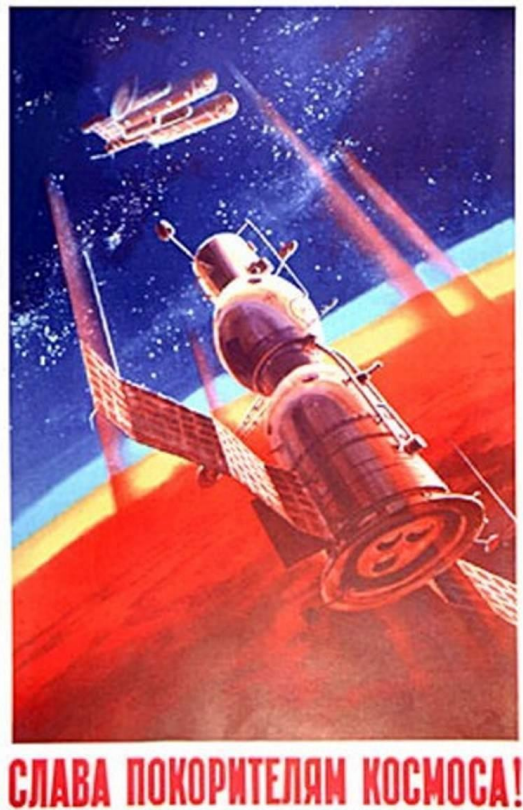

Nazi Germany, during the Second World War.

Text reads: "A mighty sports power"
Refers to the Soviet desire to win Olympic medals, proving their dominance over the US.
USSR, 1962

Text reads: "Glory to the explorers of space"
Refers to Soviet desire to dominate space, and their pride at having already launched a satellite into space.
USSR, 1971

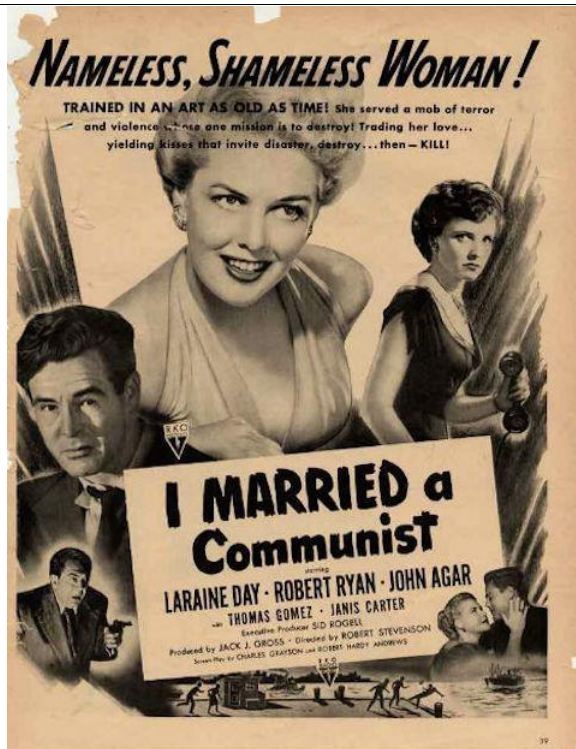

Refers to America regarding Communists as untrustworthy and dangerous; Americans were supposed to be patriotic and despise Communists.

USA movie poster, 1949

Text reads: "peace" and "Jo-Jo [Joseph Stalin] the Dove."

Produced by a French anti-Communist group to mock Stalin, who often claimed to hold peaceful values while fighting wars.

France, 1951

Text reads: "Bolshevism, inept and evil politicians, social injustice" etc.

Shows a Spanish man sweeping away all these problems in Franco's fascist Spain, Franco era, Date unknown.

Text reads: "same year, different weather"

Claims Soviet industry is doing much better than American industry.

USSR, Cold War, date unknown

